CPEP Clinical Practice Re-Entry Program

Keeping abreast of medical changes can be a challenge for today's physician.

Imagine returning to practice after several years away. Catching up while making sure patients still receive the best care can be a daunting challenge.

A re-entering physician must demonstrate competence in order to:

- Renew hospital privileges
- Reactive their license
- Qualify for affordable medical malpractice insurance.

The re-entering physicians needs more than a test of knowledge. They need a plan to show they can practice medicine.

CPEP has built our reputation on setting the industry standard for individualized, comprehensive competency evaluations and education plans.

Interactive Evaluation

The CPEP Clinical Practice Re-Entry program addresses the needs of physicians re-entering medical practice after an extended absence.*

Whether you are returning from:

- Caring for a family member
- Personal illness
- A career change
- Retirement

The Re-Entry program is designed to help physicians make a safe and effective transition back into clinical practice. The interactive evaluation and educational experience is individualized to the participant. No cookie cutter approach.

The Clinical Practice Re-Entry program addresses the competency concerns of many state medical boards and hospitals. We take a comprehensive look at a participant's ability to practice medicine. This is important in today's medical environment where the focus is on reducing medical errors and improving patient safety.

*Physicians left the medical field in good standing. Participants must plan to re-enter areas of clinical practice in which they have had prior clinical experience. Returning physicians switching fields qualify for CPEP standard assessment/education process. CPEP cannot guarantee educational resources will be available for all educational needs.

Program Features Include:

Focused Clinical Skills Evaluation

- Evaluations conducted by board-certified physicians
- Program directors trained in evaluation methodology
- Practiced-based learning in physician's own community
- Access to a large network of educational resources
- Detailed reporting and tracking.

Practice-Based Learning and Re-Entry Process

- Phase I: Supervised clinical experience in a university or community based setting
- Phase II: Transitional clinical experience in an independent practice with the guidance and oversight of a skilled preceptor

CPEP's relationships with academic and community educational resources across the country give us an advantage in designing educational plans that meet the needs of each physician.
